

Under Dress Lace Slip Pattern

The under dress lace slip is what my grandmother used to use under her dress in summers. My recollection of her wardrobe is of many above the knee sheath dresses and mid-calf off the shoulder 1950's cotton dresses. I used to admire the soft crinoline that made up the dress and her lovely matching pearl necklace.

To me, she was the epitome of beauty and strength. A beautiful woman widowed at 40 who never remarried because she was left with 6 kids and a farm to run.

So I thought I'd share this particular piece of clothing. It's very easy to make and wear and has been a regular part of a woman's wardrobe for generations. It is line-shaped to accommodate an hourglass figure. If you have a different shape you will need to make the required alterations. This under dress slip is especially helpful for a new mother who wants an easy to wear nightgown.

I have chosen stretchable lace, but you can use a very loose woven netting or silk/cotton jersey blend for sleeping.

To print your PDF pattern

Your pattern pieces come at the end of these instructions. For accurate printing, please make sure you are using the latest version of Adobe Reader. You can download the latest version here if you need to.

Select File → Print and the print dialogue box opens. Under Page Sizing and Handling, select ACTUAL SIZE . Check the preview in the right hand side illustration. Select the page numbers you want to print. You can print the whole document, or just the pattern pieces.

On the edge of the top left page is a box you can use to test your printing. This box should measure 2 inches square. If yours is wildly different you will need to check your printer options to make sure the pages are not being resized.

Use the grey guides on the overlap of the sheets to match up the pattern pieces, folding under or cutting off any overlaps, tape together and cut out your pattern pieces.
