A geometric diagram showing two parallel lines intersected by a transversal line. The transversal is a thin black line that runs diagonally from the bottom-left towards the top-right. The two parallel lines are thicker black lines, also running diagonally, with the top line being slightly steeper than the bottom line. The area between these two parallel lines is shaded light gray. Two small squares are placed on the transversal, one on each parallel line, to indicate a right angle. A short horizontal line segment connects these two squares. The label 'B13' is positioned to the right of the transversal, between the two parallel lines.

A geometric diagram showing a large trapezoid with a light gray fill. The trapezoid is defined by a top horizontal edge, a bottom horizontal edge, a left vertical edge, and a right slanted edge. A line segment connects the top-left corner to a point on the right slanted edge. Another line segment connects the top-right corner to a point on the left slanted edge. These two segments intersect within the trapezoid. A small square symbol is located at the intersection point, indicating a right angle. The label 'C13' is positioned in the center of the trapezoid.
